SCHOOL DIRECTORS CONVENTION.

IN THE COURT HOUSE AT BELLEFONTE

State Superintendent N. C. Schaeffer and Supt. James M. Coughlin Among the Noted Educators Present.

FULL ACCOUNT OF PROCEEDINGS

By James A. Fiedler

Quite a fair representation of school directiors of Centre county participated in the second annual convention of the association, in the Court House, Thursday, Jan. 19. The organization is in excellent working order and a vast amount of intellectual benefit cannot help but be derived therefrom. To have the best possible schools, the directors necessarily must become interested. When the directors of a township or borough becomes thoroughly aroused as to their actual responsibilities the educational interests of that district are sure to be elevated.

Among those who made addresses at this meeting were such men as Ex-Senator W. C. Heinle, David F. Fortney, Esq, Dr. N. C. Schaffer, State Superintendent of public schools; Supt. James M. Coughlin, of the Wilesbarre public schools, and others equally as eminent in educational matters of the state. The ideas presented by each one given in this report and they are all worthy of careful consideration.

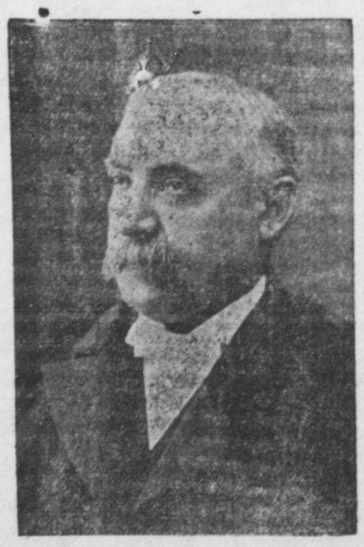
Rev. Dr. Holloway of the Bellefonte Lutheran church, conducted the devotional exercises of the convention, after which President W. C. Heinle made the opening address of the day. Among his thoughts expressed are the following:

PRESIDENT HEINLE'S ADDRESS.

Opens the Convention and Very Pointedly Outlines the Educational Situation as it Exists Today.

President Heinle's address, at the opening of the second annual session, follows:

As president of this honorable body, and as your fellow-citizen, I extend to you a hearty welcome, with my best wishes for your success, collectively and individually.



PRESIDENT W. C. HEINLE.

[Ex-Senator Heinle was unanimously re-elected president of the Centre county directors' association for the ensuing year. He is one of Bellefonte's active directors. His experience as a former teacher, a practicing attorney and member of the State Senate enables him to be a most useful member of the fraternity.]

Although imperfect yet, the aw setting apart the annual session of the School Directors was a wise and good one. It will mean much in the future. Our country is destined to be great and prosperous. It has but one enemy and that is corruption, and unless the coming generations are properly educated this may be a stumbling block to morality, a hindrance to our progress and a menace to our Nation. Herein is where I differ from the present methods we have in making foreign born individuals citizens of the United States by naturalization; not that I say aught detrimental to the character and patriotism of naturalized citizens, because many of them are among our foremost people advocating and supporting every educational interest and institution in our country. These are of the highest type of American citizenship, because their purpose of coming here was not only for the betterment of themselves, but to stand in the front ranks promoting the welfare of humanity and the educational systems and institutions of our land.

But a large number have not these qualifications, nor this patriotic love for the welfare of our free institutions, and for these, five years and a crude knowledge of our Government should not be a sufficient recommendation, but their conduct and habits in this country; their appreciation of a free Government and their earnest efforts to educate themselves to become good citizens should be inquired into while here as well as in the country from whence they came. It should not alone be a vote qualification, but an educational qualification. If this is not done, the illiteracy will surely retard the progress of our system of education. If you have any of this latter class in your districts, see that their children are truly Americanized in our public schools. The laws long continued of a free Republic are but the enacted wishes of its people and as are the people so are the laws. The term "a free people" signifies nothing, but to have a free and educated people means much. It means everything for the future.

I note with pleasure quite a number of teachers employed today in Centre county are graduates of Normal Schools. This, to my mind, bodes well for Centre county. It is my candid opinion the more training our teachers have in the direct line of their profession, the more efficient they become, and in return, the more benefit they are in our schools. It is true that many of our foremost teachers in the county are not graduates of Normal Schools, but who, by native ability and indominent will power and industry, stand in the front rank of the profession; yet of what still greater power they would be had they a normal school training. All other professions have their training schools and universities, why not the teachers profession, which is the character builder of our citizens. Especially are our people favored, as we have a Normal School in our neighboring county, in Lock Haven, that today has a

THE RUSSIAN REVOLUTION!

Massacre at the Palace of the White Czar.

IN ST. PETERSBURG

Human Blood Washes the Streets of the Russian Capital—Strikers Demands Met by Volleys.

LATEST FROM THE SCENE OF TURMOIL

Revolution Sunday made a shambles of St. Petersburg, capital of the mighty Russian Empire.

"Russia will have a constitution or Czar Nichclas will lose his head," is the gloomy prediction of a member of the Imperial household.

From the magnificent sweep of the public squares to the narrow confines of the alleys, in the districts inhabited by the poor, the slaughter raged.

The day closed with a merciless massacre, by Cossacks, of hundreds of innocent spectators—the demons of the plains unhesitatingly obeying orders to enact such a murder as would terrorize all Russia.

Under a perfect winter sky, in a day made glorious by a sun that touched the gilded domes of palace and cathedral with an iridescent fire, 2000 of the innocent, long suffering Russian masses offered up their lives on the altar of liberty, and 5,000 were wounded.

The conflict lasted all day long and far into the night. the terrible tragedy of the day ending with the slaughter of innocents; and, with the groans of dead and dying mingling with the curses and imprecations of the living, the million-fold tragedies of the French Commune were enacted.

It was reported, too, that immense bodies of armed men are marching from cities near to St. Petersburg, bearing arms and ready to lend their aid to the revolutionists, There are rumors of trouble in Finland and disaffection of the troops.

The situation appears grave from every standpoint, but the authorities, although apparently somewhat bewildered, declare their purpose to stand firm, maintaining that it is their first idea to preserve order, scouting the idea of actual revolution. Seemingly the ministers are most concerned over the effect of the present situation abroad where, they declare, exaggerated reports create a false impression. What, if any steps have been taken to meet the general situation, however, has not been disclosed, but there are extremely significant reports that Emperor Nicholas, in making the decision at the extraordinary meeting of the council of the empire at Tsarsko Selo Monday, to declare St. Petersburg in a state of siege, announced that he had resolved to issue a manifesto to the people with a view of calming them, promising to create a mixed commission of workmen and officials to investigate and decide the questions of the demands of the strikers, especially the ones affecting hours of labor, which Russian law fixes at eleven. The representatives of the workmen, according to this report, are not to be appointed, but selected by the laboring men themselves. This would be the first concession to the representative principle.

Monday, there was no repetition of the deplorable occurrences of Sunday with the exception that a single blank volley was fired at a weak crowd near Warsaw station. Careful investigation shows that no bullets were fired. The military everywhere had a firm grip on the situation and the police used every possible precaution, such as forbidding the sale of petroleum and advising people to remain indoors.

The tension, which was somewhat relaxed in the morning, continued to increase during the day. Conditions appeared to be ominous when, shortly after dark, the workmen in two electric light plants, walked out, refusing triple pay to remain, and plunged half the city into utter darkness, including the Nevsky Prospect, which is in the fashionable residence quarter. The water supply also was cut off, and a veritable panic ensued. Tales that dynamite was in the possession of strikers and that it was their purpose to sack and burn the town had been in circulation and many people were terror stricken. Reserve troops were called out to guard the darkened portion of the city. The people still in the streets, except a few strikers and roughs, fled to their homes Police officers visited every house and store, ordering all not to venture out at their perils, and turn out the lights in their front windows. Shop keepers and every private houseowner barred their windows and doors. When the lights were turned on at the plants, except the patrolling cavalry and infantry, the streets were deserted.

At midnight when life in the Russian capital is usually bright, St. Petersburg resembled a city of the dead invaded by a hostile army. The facades of the buildings were black and every restaurant and place of amusement was closed. The only sound to be heard was the deadened patter of the hoofs of the cavalry horses and the tramp of marching men over the snow as the emperor's legion moved to and fro.

The guards at the palaces of the grand dukes are especially heavy and over 20,000 troops are massed at Tsarskoe Selo.

AN OLD SOLDIER'S DEATH.

John Holderman, Formerly of Bellefonte Dies at Altoona.

John Holderman, formerly of Bellefonte, but late of Altoona, died in the Altoona hospital Wednesday morning at 3:30 o'clock from general debility. Last November Mr. Holderman fell and fractured the left femur bone and on November 24 was admitted to the hospital for treatment. His advanced years hindered the knitting of the bone and the fracture was a contributory cause to his death. Deceased was born in Centre county, near Lemont, and was 84 years of age. He followed farming for a great many years and of late years has been living a retired life. Up until last spring he lived with a son on South Allegheny street and then moved to Altoona where they have since resided.

Deceased was a veteran of the civil war and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He was a member of Co. H, 56th Pennsylvania Veteran Volunteers.

He left Bellefonte with his company in November 1861 and continued in active service until the close of the war in July 1865. He never left his regiment for a day and participated in every battle that the regiment took part in. His comrades speak in the highest terms of his bravery and faithfulness as a soldier. He was always on the right of his company and never flinched from a single duty no matter how hazardous it was.

The remains arrived in Bellefonte Friday afternoon at 1:25 and were taken to Lemont at 2.00. The funeral service was held at Houserville Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment at that place.

B. PAUL SHIPLEY.

B. Paul Shipley, a well known citizen of Unionville, died very suddenly Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock. He had been in the best of health and in company with John P. Harris Jr., he went to his father's barn to get a tent which was in the loft. He was standing on a box two feet high when he suddenly slipped off. Mr. Harris asked him if he was hurt and he replied "Yes, I am," and falling over he expired.

The deceased was born in Unionville and was 38 years of age. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Shipley, of Unionville, who survives him with two brothers and four sisters as follows: Aleck, George, Mrs. Elizabeth Potter, Mrs. Maggie Wolford and Mary, of Unionville, and Miss Sue, of Bellefonte.

He was a member of the Methodist church and also belonged to Centre Lodge I. O. O. F., of Bellefonte.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the house. Interment in the Unionville cemetery.

Raymond Harter, of Jacksonville Injured

While chopping corn in a large chopper propelled by horse power Raymond Harter, aged 20 years, son of G. M. Harter, had his coat sleeve caught in the machinery and his hand ground off. Mr. Harter, who lives on a farm near Jacksonville had gone to the mountains to cut wood leaving his son to run the chopper alone Between 3 and 4 o'clock, as he was attempting to get some corn under the chopper, his sleeve caught. He called to the horses to stop but they paid no attention and his hand was drawn in the machine and chopped up. His screams brought out his mother, who stopped the horses in time to save his arm.

IN THE TEMPLE OF JUSTICE!

Judge Orvis' First Term Of Court.

IT WAS A SHORT ONE

Few Cases Were Tried and the Second Week of Court Was Dispensed With—Report of the Grand Jury.

REPORTED BY W. HARRISON WALKER

The regular term of January court convened Monday morning, January 23rd, 1905. Hon. Ellis L. Orvis, President Judge, took his seat promptly at ten o'clock. Prothonotary Kimport and Register Archey took their respective places. Court stenographer G. S. Burrows arrived here from Sunbury at 9 o'clock ready for service.

The morning session was taken up in the presentation of motions and petitions by the several members of the bar.

The court made the following appointments:

Court Crier—Charles Smith, of Bellefonte,

Court Messenger—Simeon Haupt, Bellefonte.

Tip-Staves James Kane and William Dawson, of Bellefonte, and James Mechley, of College township.

The court appointed S. D. Gettig Esq., on the Library committee.

The constables of the several boroughs and townships made their quarterly returns, after which the Grand Jurors were called into the box and given their instructions by the Court.

Jerome Spigelmyer, of Millheim, was appointed Foreman of the Grand Jury.

As soon as the members of the Grand Jury had taken place in the rooms the District Attorney Elect, William Groh Runkle, laid before them several bills of indictment to be disposed of as soon as possible, so that there would be no delay of the Court for cases for trial.

Upon reading over the Calendar for the first week of Court the following cases were marked, "continued":—

M. J. Averbeck vs F. P. Blair and Thomas Moore, trading as F. B. Blair & Co., Appeal. Plea, non assumpsit.

H. B Wright, vs Joseph Diehl, Appeal. Plea, non assumpsit.

Thomas E. Rickets & Son vs T. M. Meyers, Appeal. Plea, non assumpsit.

E. Joseph, et. al. trading as Joseph Bros. & Co., versus M. W. Cowdrick, Appeal, plea, non Assumpsit.

The only cases open for trial on the civil list for the first week are the following:—

Eunice H. Jackson vs D. D. Woods, Appeal. Plea, non assumpsit.

Montgomery & Co., vs. M. W. Cowdrick. Appeal, Plea non assumpit.

All traverse jurors were discharged at 10 o'clock Tuesday forenoon and after the Grand Jury had handed in their final report at 11 o'clock Tuesday they were discharged. The business of the Court this week was exceptionally light. Only four criminal cases were presented to the grand jury for disposition and all found true bills according to the report, and only two cases on the civil list were called for trial.

The first case was that of Eunice H. Jackson versus D. D. Woods, being an appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace. After a jury was sworn the attorney for the defendant stated to the Court that his client had not appeared and that as he was interested with one of the attorneys of Philipsburg he was unable to go to trial without first consulting his parties. The court continued the case at the costs of the defendant.

The only criminal case tried was that of Commonwealth versus George Campbell who was charged with an assault and battery on Walter G Tallhelm of Julian. From the facts in the case it appeared that the defendant had struck the prosecutor several blows on the head after church had closed which they had both attended. The jury after a few moments deliberation found the defendant guilty, and he was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $15,00 and the costs of prosecution which amounted to about $55.00 and to stand committed until his sentence was complied with.

The civil list was then called over and the only case for disposition was that of Montgomery & Co., versus M. W. Cowdrick, which was in the nature of an appeal. From the facts as testified to by the plaintiff it appeared that from March 1891 to some time in 1893 that company had sold goods to a minor son of the defendant. The suit was brought to recover the amount due. The defendant plead the statute of limitation and the court directed a verdict for the defendant.

There were sixteen cases on the list for trial for the second week of Court commencing Monday the 30 inst., but as many of them were continued by Counsel of the Court did not deem it advisable to call the panel of jurymen together next week at the great expense to the tax payers to dispose of but two or three cases and therefore continued the entire list over until the April Term of Court 1905.

The following is a list of cases which were continued, either by Counsel or by the Court as being "special."

Aaronsburg, Bellefonte and Youngmanstown Turnpike Road Co., versus Centre County. Trespass, Plea, not guilty.

William E. Shope, adm'r o. c, t. a. of Julia A. Shope, dec'd versus Jas. E. Shope, Ejectment. Plea, not guilty.

Cyrus Brungart, Sheriff versus Mary Thomas and James Schofield, D. S. R. Plea, non assumpit.

W. H. Johnsonbach, et. al. versus A. B. McNitt et. al. Trespass. Plea, not guilty.

Nellie Zeigler, vs Barney Mendlemann, Slander, Plea, not guilty.

Mary Gates, et. al. vs Minnie Rowan, et. baron. Ejectment, Plea, not guilty.

B. F. Harris versus Huston Township, Trespass, Plea, not guilty.

Mary A. Davidson, et, al. vs Orvis Peters, Trespass, Plea, not guilty.

Use of T. B. Harnard versus Jennie Hastings et. al. Sci. Fa. Sur. Jdgt. Plea, non assumpsit.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY.

To the Honorable, the Judges of the Court of Quarter Sessions of the peace in and for the County of Centre.

The Grand Inquest of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania inquiring in and for the County of Centre in all matters relating to the same would respectfully report;

That they have acted upon four bills of indictment of which four were found true bills.

We beg leave further to report that we have visited and inspected the County buildings and find the first and second floor of jail and steps in bad condition and recommend them repaired, and also the plastering on the jail wall be repaired as soon as the weather permits and the tiling in the vault in the Registers office needs immediate repairing.

We further report that we found the balance of the buildings in good repair and conditions.

We respectfully tender our thanks to the Honorable Judge and District Attorney for their courtesy and assistance during our deliberations.

Dillen and Green Guilty of Murder.

The Supreme court Monday affirmed the verdict of murder in the first degree, rendered against William Dillen and Ira Green, in Centre county, at Bellefonte. The court dismisses the twenty-three exceptions taken by the counsel for the men and says the evidence in the case does not raise the slightest doubt about the guilt of the defendants.

Penna. State Capitol Building as it will appear when completed.

FOR LARG R CAPITOL PARK

Extension of State Grounds the Theme of Legislators.

Members of the state legislature who gathered at Harrisburg for the opening sessions are enthusiastic for the extension of the capitol park so that the commonwealth's magnificent new building may be given an adequate setting. The necessity of doing something that will improve the surroundings of the beautiful structure is apparent to everyone who has been at the state capital.

The project suggested is for the state to purchase a section of land bounded by Fourth street on the east, North street on the north and Walnut street on the south, the eastern line being the property of the Pennsylvania railroad company. This section can be bought comparatively cheap and will add immeasureably to the beauty of the state capitol. As it now stands the great building, which vies with the state capitols of the country, is set upon a hill which rises from eight to twelve feet above the asphalt of Harrisburg's streets. On the side facing the river it is approached by a fine flight of steps and is set back from the street line so that some idea can be gained of its proportions and architectural detail on which a wealth of idea has been expended and which will be one of the crowning features of the building. But even on this side the view is curtailed because of the buildings, churches and homes which make up the city's chief residential section and which would cost high in the millions to purchase.

On the eastern side, on which it is proposed to make the improvements by securing the land, the conditions are altogether different. The great building rises to the height of seven stories crowned then by its dome, alm[illegible] that would be the houseline. Fourth street, on which it faces, is a narrow highway, not very well built and not much travelled save by trolley, one of the city's lines going by the capitol park on its way to the West End. State street, which runs east from the building, is the only one on which a view of the capitol can be obtained and even on it only a section, which is limited and anything but satisfying can be had. On the other streets one can get glimpses of the building, which is destined to be the pride of a state. Persons passing on trains have but a momentary sight of the middle part of the building, nothing like what can be had in half a score of capitals where buildings are set with an eye to beauty.

The plot which it is proposed that the state should buy to provide a decent setting for its official home contains some 20 city blocks, but none has any expensive buildings. On the contrary some of the thoroughfares which would be abolished should the state take the land are among the worst in the city. As can be gleaned from the accompanying views there are several which in course of time will have to be changed as the rickety buildings will fall down before many years. Two of these highways are alleys in the strict sense of the word, narrow, poorly built up and the home of persons who either do not wish to or who cannot improve their condition in life. The city of Harrisburg to keep them clean and sanitary arranged to pave them full width which permits of frequent flushing and sweeping.

Among the other buildings are one or two industrial plants, a soap factory and a hotel and market, all of them erected years ago, and only better than the bulk of the other houses in the district because of greater size and solidarity of construction. The section is one whose proximity to the state capitol has caused more than one legislator and state official to wish that the buildings could be levelled and the area added to make an addition for the park. Those who have seen capitols in other states recall the spacious lawns and land showing the skill of the landscape architect and contrast them with the poor provision made for the home of the government of the nation's great commonwealth.

There will be little opposition to the purchase from the people who own the land and who live in the section, as the advantages to the whole state are obvious, and should the legislature decide upon the purchase the $4,500,000 building will not be hidden in the midst of the city.

Smallpox Scare at Bucknell University.

There was considerable excitement at Bucknell university on Saturday when it was reported that a case of smallpox had been discovered. John W. Cure, a freshman, was exposed to a case of the dread disease during the holiday vacation. When the young man was taken ill he was immediately quarantined in the town hospital, four blocks from the college building in the care of an experienced nurse and under strict guard. The rooms and clothing of the students were fumigated and as a further precaution the students were required to be vaccinated. The newspaper reports regarding the matter have been greatly exaggerated and up to noon Thursday only two students out of 700 enrolled at the university had left Lewisburg.

THE WAY OF THE TRANSGRESSOR

"I say, Billy, hurry up with that buckboard and go over to the station for my gal. I can't go now on account of that blasted runaway mare, She will be waiting on some one and you can't make any mistake. 'Tain't likely as there'll be anybody else for Pine Station."

"All right, boss. Are you sure she will be on that train."

"Sure's I am that she's my own daughter."

And then boss John Everts, a big, muscular man of about fifty, strode away with a scowl on his brown face. He expected to meet Nan himself but since that mare had ran away he had to go in search of it and leave Billy Mitchell, a cowboy, go for his girl, this Nan. The time was still very early and it was a ten mile drive to the little station. If the train was on time Nan would be waiting.

The cowboy, Billy, was a handsome fellow; there was something about him that made one like and trust him. He was thin and tho' not tall, had the appearance of being so. He had very light, curly hair and calm, blue eyes. His features were regular and good.

One who knew anything about gentlemen would say this was a real gentleman, devoid of the world's polish.

He was not ignorant, far from it. His companions all declared he should have been a city chap instead of only a cowboy.

He was wont to say that he would rather be a plain cowboy than president of the United States.

This morning he was wondering what sort of a girl Nan Everts might be, whether pretty or plain, grave or gay Anyhow he could not find out until he had driven her home.

"I do hope she will like the ranche, if she don't she won't stay long enough for us to get acquainted. I bet Jack will be mad when he finds out I had first chance for meeting Miss Nan. He declares he will have her for a sweetheart before she's here two weeks. Bah, the hound. I don't care to make very much of an impression unless she's a prettier girl than I've seen yet."

When Nan Everts saw the cowboy a wicked little thought entered her pretty little head.

"If he is one of Dadsmen, here is a beautiful chance for a flirtation. I hope he is. Here he comes. I do believe he is to take me home. Of course it was her Dad'sman,

He introduced himself and was secretly admiring the daintily little maid all the time he put her trunks on the wagon.

She talked, scarcely giving him a chance to utter a word nearly all the way home. Asking him questions about the ranch and then about himself. As to how long he had worked for her father and so much other nonsense he could hardly believe his ears.

He took in every word she uttered, it seemed to be rare music in his ears. He had seen many girls before he came West but never a girl to equal this one. Never had he seen eyes so brown or so bright. And her hair was so pretty and the way she had it put up was very much to his liking. Without knowing it he was enshrining her image in his heart.

And the girl? Well she was surprised at herself She liked him and before he helped her alight at the open ranch-door she told herself here was the man for her

Her father was there to meet her, he found the mare and just got home in time to welcome her home from school.

Aunt Eliza, John Everts sister, came out and after greeting her very affectionately carried Nan off to her room.

After supper Nan met several more of the cowboys, among them Jack Morley, a very tall, powerful looking young man of about twenty-eight.

It was he that had boasted to be Nan's sweetheart inside of two weeks.

He was very dark and handsome with a dare-devil air about him that his companions all admired. He was the best shot with revolver and Winchester in that part of the state while Billy Mitchell was the best rider.

Before a week had gone by every man on the ranch was in love with the ranchman's pretty daughter. And not only they but every single man around was trying to get some excuse for visiting Everts.

For three weeks she flirted with every man of them and gave them every encouragement she could.

Then she learned that she really loved Billy Mitchell! That was the hardest part of it. She had hoped to withstand the siege but it was too much for her her heart which was only human.

Then Billy told her, when they were galloping over the prairie, that he loved her and only her.

It was a long time before she answered him but when she did it was so strange that it nearly took his breath away.

"I am surprised that you care so much for me for the reason that I care a great deal for you. I thought you were like the others and it made me afraid, for I should have had to go away if I had known you did not care for me. And I could not live away from my own people any longer. They had dismounted and were resting their horses in a small clump of trees.

Nan was crying and the cowboy, whose heart could not abide woman's tears dried her tears away and coaxed and petted her in a truly laughable way, for a disinterested person but the dark face of the man lying a few feet away from them, where he could hear and see both of them, did not look as though he thought it very laughable.

On the contrary, he scowled a great deal and swore under his breath.

"What a lucky fate," thought he "that brought me here at this time today, to witness the lover's scene. I'll make it hot for both. Jack can hate as well as love, Miss Nannie, and if I hate you, my dear, nothing can keep me from killing you both. That won't do though. I don't hate Nan and never want to. She will marry me. I swear it! That dog shall suffer even as I have to suffer."

"Heavens, why don't they get out of that? I'm dying here where I dare not move or scarcely breathe. Ah! I'm so glad she has persuaded the yellow haired devil to go, and then with a touch of his old grim humor he added:

"Goodbye Billy boy, Goodbye. When next we meet it will be all day with you. Goodbye sweetheart. I hate to make you cry. And then the two foolish young people started home again and Jack Morley was very miserable and, had he known it, the very wickedest of the three.

He had heard Billy say that he would speak to Nan's father the next evening when the latter came home from the range.

Jack lay awake planning all night until he couldn't endure it any longer when he arose, saddled his horse and galloped away, determined not to come back until he had to.

Nan was up with the sun and went for a morning gallop with her sweetheart. They returned in time for a lunch and then Nan went for another wild ride with a neighbor, a lover of hers.

She could see by the man's manner that he wanted to speak but skilfully kept him from it, though not discouraging him in the least.

When he left her at her own door, in the middle of the afternoon, he had her promise to ride with him the next day.

"For I have something to tell you, Miss Nan, something that means a great deal to me. Goodbye he said as he mounted. Nan waved a goodbye that meant everything or nothing.

She was beginning to think she was not doing the right thing by allowing every man to lose his head on account of her.

She had nothing to do in particular until her father returned. She wanted to change her dress and brush her hair so she went to her room.

A strange feeling possessed her. For the first time in her life she was uneasy and felt guilty.

Taking her diary to the window she began to write the day's happenings. When she could think of nothing else she wrote for something to do.

"I know it is silly of me to entertain such groundless fears, yet I am unable to think of anything except of my disloyalty to my sweetheart, my promised husband.

"I knew he cared for me ever since I came and I could not keep myself from liking him. I cared more for him than all the others put together, yet I flirted and encouraged them all. Especially the dark faced Jack Morley. I'm really afraid of him He looks as though he could make things lively if he was crossed anyhow in a matter like this.

"If Dad would only come home so I could talk to him and be comforted. Aunt is of no earthly use to me whatever and don't think I have a heart, so there is no use in going to her.

"I'm afraid, oh so much afraid and don't know what of. I guess it is of my sins."

"I never believed until now that the 'way of the transgressor is hard.' Heaven knows I never did anything really wicked but I've been all for pleasure and as vain as a spoiled child. That is what I am."

"I feel as though I could never allow another man to speak to me without telling him how bad I've been."

"Oh, well I'll try to be good from today. The boys will all know about my engagement tonight."

She finished dressing and then went out meeting Billy at the door.

"Has the boss come in yet, Nan?" How pale you are looking little girl, what is the matter?"

"Oh, nothing," and she smiled bravely.

"Yes there is something. Tell me, maybe I can help you."

"I will tell you. Have you seen anything of Jack today."

"No. I don't know where he is."

"I'm afraid of him. When he hears about our engagement I fear he will make trouble, at least for you."

"I don't have any fears on that subject. I agree with you, though, in thinking that he will be angry. He has been ugly to me sometime past. Cheer up, Nan, he can't hurt us."

"But suppose he should be silly enough to fight with you? You told me of such a thing happening here once."

"He has more sense than that man. Let's drop Jack. Your Father will be here soon."

Just then John Everts rode up and gave his horse over to Billy.

Together he and Nan went indoors. She sat down in the sitting room to wait until he had made a rough toilet.

She had scarcely seated herself until she heard voices and went to see who was talking so loudly.

She was surprised to see Jack Morley and Billy, the one angry and fierce looking, the other surprised and uneasy.

Nan stood and watched them for the space of a moment and then reading the purpose of the angry, devilish Jack she started toward them.

"Jack for Heaven's sake listen to reason. I had no more chance than the rest of you fellows. Nan chose me and that is all."

"She chose you? You told her tales about me. I'll blow your head off so prepare yourself." And the fellow whipped his revolver from the holster and fired one shot at Billy hitting him in the neck.

Before he could pull the trigger Nan was between them.

Neither had seen her.

Her father was in the door as the second shot was fired and nearly fainted as he saw Nan stagger and fall against Billy, who caught her in his arms. His own blood was all over his shirt and stained the white dress of Nan.

Jack was like a marble statue. Poor Billy was dazed. His own wound was of no consequence to him, it was not dangerous.

John Everts was so mad he couldn't speak for a full two minutes. Then he sprang forward and took the limp form of his daughter in his arms and tried to assure himself that she had only fainted. She was quite dead! The bullet had entered her left temple without drawing a drop of blood.

"What is the meaning of this?" shouted Everts.

"It means, John, I've lost my sweetheart and—"

"And why? I knew she was your sweetheart, Billy, but what is the meaning of this?"

"Jack was jealous and boss I can't tell you any more."

"Jack Morley, you are the meanest, lowest, filthiest dog who ever hurt me,"

"My girl was all I had and you, you killed her."

"Billy pick up your revolver and you" to one of the men who had come and was looking on in open monthed wonder "call every hand out here. Before yonder sun sinks behind the hills my daughter is avenged."

"What do you mean, John?" asked Billy.

"You shall see. Jack, if you have anything to say, say it mighty quick, the sun is very low."

The wretch only bowed his head and threw his revolver over to the sorrowful father.

He did not have any so he took it without a word and saw it held four cartridges yet.

Billy was calm outwardly, but felt as though he could not control himself.

The last man came up asking questions of the other. Everts' sister was standing beside him, her apron to her eyes.

"You want to have a hand in this? Stand closer to me. When I say three fire. One—Two—Thr -ee."

Both revolvers cracked at once. Jack fell with two bullets in his heart, and Billy fainted.

Beware of Counterfeits.

"Dewitt's is the only genuine Witch Hazel Salve," writes J. L. Tucker, of Centre, Ala., "I have used it in my family for Piles, Cuts and Burns for years and can recommend it to be the best Salve on the market. Every family should keep it as it is an invaluable household remedy, and should always be kept on hand for immediate use." Mrs. Samuel Gage, of North Bush, N. Y., says: "I had a fever sore on my ankle for twelve years that the doctors could not cure. All salves and blood remedies proved worthless. I could not walk for over two years. Finally, I was persuaded to try DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, which has completely cured me. It is a wonderful relief." DeWitt's Hazel Salve cures without a scar. Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

Druggists Losing Phone Fight.

Kansas City, October 7.—The Bell telephone company of this city is quietly winning a victory over the Retail Druggists' Association. Several months ago, after a long period of agitation, the members voted to order the Bell telephones taken out of their stores and to patronize only the Home company. Experience has demonstrated that in order to conduct their business most profitably they must have both telephones. For weeks Bell instruments have been ordered reinstated and before the holiday season sets in it is believed that a Bell telephone will again be a fixture in every drug store in the two Kansas Cities.—The Pharmaceutical Era.

Speedy Relief.

A salve that heals without a scar is DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. No remedy effects such speedy relief. It draws out inflammation, soothes, cools and heals all cuts, burns and bruises. A sure cure for piles and skin diseases. DeWitt's is the only genuine Witch Hazel Salve. Beware of counterfeits, they are dangerous. Sold by Green's pharmacy.

The Old Folks Concert.

Mary Ann Johnson and her
Committee of ten,
Will give a grand concert with
Old ladies and men.

They will sing the old melodies
That they sang when they spun,
And will wear the poke bonnet
They wore when they were young.

See old men in knee breeches
And full ruffled shirts,
Who'll sing with old ladies
Who once were great flirts.

Come all ye young damsels
And short haired young men,
And hear the grand concert
Of old ladies and men.

Walk right in the chapel,
And to Mary stand pat.
And drop in your quarters
In Jim Foreman's old hat.

—ROBERT BURNS.

Let's be Safe and Sane.

(Editorial in Erie Daily Times, Jan. 13)

It is of the utmost importance that the publishers of newspapers in this commonwealth take such steps as will show to the people of this state, as well as to the citizenship of the entire country, that Pennsylvanians are not a lot of cowards afraid to say that their souls are their own. Gov. Pennypacker has thrown down the gauntlet and evidently not a single recognized leader of the state has had the courage to say a word in defense of the newspapers that have been doing most of their work for many years. If the governor of this commonwealth proposes to put a collar on the necks of Pennsylvania political leaders and such an offensive collar that all of our people are made the just subjects of ridicule all over the world, and not one of the leaders is independent or courageous enough to defend the newspapers, who times without number have come to their rescue and without recompense of any kind have fought their battles to a finish and successfully so, we think it is time for the newspaper fraternity to get together and make the issue once and for all Governor Pennypacker would never have been heard of, he never could have been nominated, and once before the people he never could have been elected had it not been for the newspapers of this state. A bigger in grate than he never sat in a public office. He not only goes out of his way to show his contempt of newspaper workers, but he deliberately plans not once, but twice, to ruin property worth millions of money invested in newspapers and managed by as faithful and conscientious a body of hard working business men as dwells in this or any other state of the union.

It is up to the newspapers to rebuke the man and condemn the sentiment expressed, not in words alone, but better still by bold and determined acts. Words of condemnation will soon be forgotten unless followed up with something more effective.

Newspaper men of Pennsylvania, why not have a governor from your own ranks—a high-toned, fearless citizen of Pennsylvania who is as true as steel and who knows the needs of the state and who can be relied on to give the people a business administration and serve the people as their chief executive as fearlessly as he conducts his own newspaper in behalf of the people who support and believe in him?

It is time that Pennsylvania had in its gubernatorial chair a broad-minded citizen, instead of one who is so narrow that he cannot see beyond his own little narrow self. A governor who will be looked up to and respected throughout the land and who will give to Pennsylvania the kind of an administration of public affairs such as will appeal to all the people.

The newspaper profession has such men, plenty of them, and one of the most distinguished of them all; one who would tower head and shoulders above any governor that has filled the gubernatorial chair since the days of Andrew Curtin; one who would command the confidence and respect of every citizen of the commonwealth. Such a man is Hon. Charles Emory Smith, of the Philadelphia Press.

Come, newspaper men of Pennsylvania wake up and let's get to work. We can accomplish things if we make up our mind to do it, and it is time we were at work.

No More Suffering.

If you are troubled with indigestion get a bottle of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and see how quickly it will cure you. Geo. A. Thompson, of Spencer, Ia., says: Have had Dyspepsia for twenty years. My case was almost hopeless. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure was recommended and I used a few bottles of it and it is the only thing that has relieved me. Would not be without it. Have doctored with local physicians and also at Chicago, and even went to Norway with the hopes of getting some relief, but Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is the only remedy that has done me any good, and I can heartily recommend it. The Virtues of Vin-Te-Na...

Your knowledge of the workings of the "human machine" no doubt makes you aware of the fact that the nervous system is fed and sustained by and through the blood.

When the blood is chargedwith the elements which nature designed, the entire nervous system and all the organs are kept in a healthful state.

Without the force which the nerves absorbfrom the blood, both brain and body are poor machines. Vin-te-na contains just those elements which are wanting in impoverished, poor blood. It was found on both common sense and scientific knowledge. It has conscience and integrity back of it. Vin-te-na is the one medicine that does precisely what it was designed to do, i. e. gives life and nerve-food to the blood. It actually cures every one of those disorders which come from impoverished blood.

BLOODSTAINED RUSSIA.

In 1793, Louis XVI, the weakling king of France, hied himself away to Versailles to avoid the mob in Paris, which sought to petition him for reforms that would benefit the starving poorer classes. The mob followed until driven back by the bayonets of the troops, marching over the bodies of the slain. When informed of what was going on at the capital Louis exclaimed: "Why, it is an open revolt!" "Nay, sire," replied his minister, "it is not a revolt, it is a revolution!"

In 1905 Nicholas II, Czar of all the Russias, weak, vacillating and cowardly, takes flight from his own subjects bent on a similar mission, and from his distant retreat he can hear the rattle of musketry or see the lurid glare on the heavens. What he sees and hears is more portentious than a mere revolt of dissatisfied strikers—it is the rumbling of revolution—the sound of the popular uprising that threatens the extinction of the Romanoff dynasty.

And if this be the result Nicholas has no one to blame but himself. If the reign of terror that covered France with blood a little more than a hundred years ago is not repeated it will be because there are not among the Russian people the necessary Mirabeaus, Dantons or Robespierres. It may be that the power of iron and steel that has held Russia in subjection in the past may be successful again, but in that event it will bebut temporary The blood of the Russian slain will cry for revenge, and the smouldering flame will again be fanned to fury.

The present insurrection sounds the death knell of Russian despotism without a doubt. And, judging from the indications, the present uprising is the beginning of the end.

Republicans remember your party caucuses next Saturday afternoon and evening. See that none but good men are placed in nomination for the different offices.

A Pretty Home Wedding.

A pretty wedding occurred at the home of Alonzo Baughman, corner of Columbia avenue and Twenty-first street, on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, when John Robinson, of Port Matilda, and Mrs. Sadie Kellerman, of the seventh ward of Tyrone, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. W. R. Picken, pastor of the Columbia Avenue Methodist church. After the ceremony many were the congratulations offered by friends and neighbors. They were then, together with thirty or forty invited friends escorted to the dining room where a table was loaded to its full capacity. The groom is an industrious Christian gentleman and has all the good qualities that go to make a first-class husband. By occupation he is a teamster employed by the Chaney & Thompson firm at Port Matilda The bride needs no introduction to Tyrone people as she is well known and is fully fitted to take charge of her own home. She has hosts of friends in this community where she has made her home for several years. Wednesday the bride and groom went to Port Matilda where a large reception awaited them. They will make their home at Port Matilda.—Tyrone Herald.

State-wide reputation, easy of access and charges within reach of anyone who is earnestly seeking for an education.

And last, but not least, when you have a good teacher, hold him, hold him; he is a jewel. Not every man can be a good teacher; not every man will give his life to it unless his heart and soul are in it. If you have such a man in your public schools, keep him. Don't begrudge him his salary; his time and life which he gives you, are worth thrice his pay. There will be with us men rich in knowledge and experience and from whom we can learn many useful lessons in the master art of perfecting our common school system.

With these few remarks, I feel that I am addressing those who have thought deeply and seriously upon the matter of the education of our youth; men, who believe, as I do, that the child is really the father of the man; men who believe that this Republic has a great destiny and that the children of today should be educated to become mighty and wholesome factors in shaping that destiny

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Following President Heinle's address came the election of officers for the ensuing year, which resulted as follows: President, W. C Heinle, Esq., Vice Presidents, Dr. W. S. Glenn, State College; Ira G. Burket, Half Moon; Secretary, H. C. Quigley, Esq., Bellefonte; Treasurer, John P. Harris, Delegates to State Director's convention at Harrisburg, Prof. C. L. Gramley, S. W. Smith, Centre Hall; H. P. Harris, Bellefonte, D. A. Deitrick, Walker; Dr. S. H. Braucht, Gregg.

County Superintendent C. L. Gramley was called upon and gave many reasons why closer supervision of our schools will bring beneficial results. Some one should assume the supervision of schools in each borough or township in order that the best results may be obtained. Boroughs like Bellefonte and Philipsburg have their individual superintendents, but the townships are not accorded an equal privilege and therefore lack this valuable requisite.

[Henry C. Quigley Esq., one of the leading attorneys at the Centre county bar, has just been re elected Secretary of the School Directors' Association of Centre County.]

Dr. Schaeffer was called upon to give his views on this particular question. He says that the supervision of schools is not confined solely to the county, borough, city or even township superintendent, but it almost wholly resolves itself upon the individual teacher. Supervision must begin with the teacher and all additional effort will help to strengthen the teacher's effort. The parents have a larger share in the supervision of the schools in their community. Children must be properly taught to prepare their lessons at home during the evening hours. No pupil when he has reached the age of the intermediate or further advanced grades is able to properly prepare his or her lessons in the school room.

There must be preparations at home and that is where the parents' duty comes in as supervisors of school work. One trouble at this time is that of securing competent teachers in sufficient number. Notwithstanding the enactment of the minimum salary law, competent teachers find better remuneration in other lines, and therefore leave the profession.

Supt. James M. Coughlin followed up this same subject of school supervision and his ideas are that the burden of the situation rests with the parent, the teacher and the director. It should be every director's ambition to do something for humanity and the position he occupies would imply that such was his desire. Although serving without pay every director should feel it his duty to do his full share towards supervising the various schools in his district and especially these nearest to his place of residence.

MOST EXCELLENT FACTS

Director Fortney Urges More Tree Planting and a Larger Appropriation for Public School Purposes.

After devotional exercises the afternoon session was opened with a talk by D. F. Fortney, Esq., on the subject of "Recent School Legislation" in this paper he briefly reviewed the legislation especially relating to the schools for a period of ten years, dwelling somewhat at length upon the legislation of 1903. He called special attention to the provisions made for the establishment of public libraries in the several school districts and to the act of assembly requiring the settlement of the school taxes within the year for which they were levied and urged upon directors, that if they would enforce this act of assembly, their districts would be in better financial condition. He also impressed upon the directors present the need of paying more, indeed much more, attention to Arbor Day than they have been doing. I see no reason why the grounds surrounding our public school buildings throughout the county should be in such a barren and dilapidated condition as they now are. Larger grounds and a few trees will add much beauty to these places and prove a blessing to the community and a benefit to the children.

Mr. Fortney also urged upon the directors the need of insisting upon the legislature appropriating under present circumstances at least twelve millions of dollars for the support of the schools for the next two years. He called attention to the fact that beginning with 1901 the schools did not have eleven millions for a period of two years, and clearly showed that on the other hand the legislature even after restoring the one million cut made in the appropriation by Gov. Stone did not appropriate to the schools five million five hundred thousand dollars annually but took therefrom for every period of two years, for the Normal schools four hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars. In support of this he argued that notwithstanding the great wealth of the state, its great factories, mines and other institutions the greatest thing in the whole commonwealth were the public schools with over twelve hundred thousand pupils and that therefore the schools should receive support and financial aid to the utmost ability of the commonwealth.

SUPERINTENNEDT C L GRAMLEY.

[Prof. Gramley has succeeded in placing the public schools of Centre county to a point where State Superintendent Schaffer says "they are equal to any in the state, and far superior to many of them, His intellectual aggressiveness is unsurpassed.]

SCHOOL SUPERVISION.

State Supt. Schaeffer Thoroughly Covers the Ground—Highly Compliments Supt. Gramley for Efficiency.

School Supervision should be discussed from the point of view of the teacher, the pupil, the parent, the taxpayer as well as from the superintendent's point of view.

How does the Supt. earn his salary? is the question which the taxpayer has a right to ask. How does the Supt. of a factory earn his salary? The concern which is in my mind's eye was losing $50,000 a year. The directors naturally thought it was time to change the management, by rearranging and improving the machinery, by organizing the workman and by saving the waste of raw material, the new Supt. not only saved this loss in operating expenses, but left the firm with fifty thousand dollars profit at the end of the year. Does any question that the new Supt. earned his salary of $10,000 a year? The Supt. of schools may save the time and effort of the teachers and pupils by organizing school work and improving the methods of teaching. He may by skill and judicious supervision earn many times his salary every year that he is in office.

EFFECT IN CENTRE COUNTY

Several years ago I found a very noisy institute in Bellefonte. Instructors and lecturers were afraid to face the audience, they felt that the public and the teachers were getting no good out of the instruction. Supt. Gramley began to supervise the conduct of the people who came. He banished the booksellers as the Great Teacher banished from the temple at Jerusalem them that sold and exchanged money in its hallowed precincts.

The institute last winter was the most orderly I ever saw. During that one week the Supt. Gramley saved a waste of thousands of dollars by making the institute productive in results. If his supervision of the schools is equally efficient—and I have reason to think it is—he earned many times his salary during the time he has held the office.

DAVID F. FORTNEY. ESQ.

[No school director in Centre county has given more thought, time and attention to the subject of public schools than Mr. Fortney. A goodly share of Bellefonte's prosperous schools is due to Director Fortney's indefatigable energies. He always advocates that which tends to better the condition of public schools.]

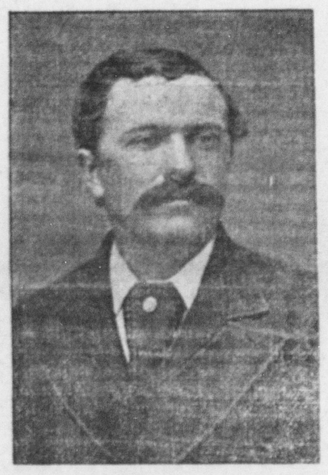
Supervision should be studied from the pupils point of view. In one county the big boys stay away from school if they know that the Supt, is coming. Their conduct shows how they look upon school supervision. The advent of this officer should be like the coming of sunshine on a cloudy day. If he seeks opportunities to be helpful and is pleasant in manner, this will be the case. If, on the other hand, he is a severe critic, causing a laugh at the expense of timid pupils, it is no wonder that they invent excuses to stay away from school. The Supt. is the best friend the teacher has. He stands between the teacher and irate parents, the unreasonable director, the mischievous newspaper reporter. To him the teacers for go counsel and help and direction in their studies and their school work.

Supervision is not the sole function of the Superintendent, teachers and directors and parents have duties in the domain of supervision. The parents can supervise the study hours of the pupil at home. The directors can supervise the work at school, especially the teaching along the rudiments of an education. They can tell whether pupils are taught to add with facility and accuracy, to write a letter without mistakes, to read so as to get thought from the printed page. The teacher should supervise the way the pupils spend their time so that they learn to work and to find pleasure in work. The child is like the savage in its dislike of work and fondness for play. The civilized man works, and finds satisfaction in work and is never quite happy when out of work. If the pupil is to be fitted for life in civilized society, he must be taught to work, to love work. That he acquire this love for work while studying at his seat in school, is one of the problems of supervision which the teacher aims to solve.

WASTE IN MANAGEMENT.

Superintendent Coughlin Points Out Where Large Savings are Accomplished.

Superintendent James M. Conghlin, of the Wilkesbarre Schools, occupied a portion of the afternoon period with a



P. J. MCDONNELL.

[Among the school directors of Centre County none take a more active interest in the schools than Director P. J. McDonnell of Unionville. He has just served a term as Vice President of the School Directors Association of Centre County.]

discussion of the subject of "Waste In Management of Schools". Mr. Conghlin always sizes up to whatever intellectual task he may be assigned, and on this occasion brought out the following thoughts:

In every well managed business undertaking to prevent waste is an important consideration. What might readily be lost through waste would go far toward paying dividends in a small moneyed concern.

I am told that the Rock Island and Quincy Railroad employs a man whose business it is to teach the firemen on their engine how to use coal economically, and still do work with these engines. The remarkable statement has been made that from a two thousand dollar salary $10000 has been saved to the company in use of fuel.

In any house the frugal housewife will save from ¼ to ½ each month in coal for her kitchen range, over what may be wasted by her less thoughtful servant. Not long since I visited an extensive tannery in the county where I live, I noticed while passing through the institution with the superintendent where the men were removing the hair from the hides that white hair was thrown in one pile and colored hair in another I asked, "what use are you making of the hair that it is being so carefully sorted? and the superintendent replied that this hair was all carefully washed, bailed and sent to the city where it was mixed with coarse cotton to make horse blankets. The shavings from the hides were all carefully collected, rendered and the produce sent to the soap factory. The trimmings of the leather was all saved bailed and sent away to the city where it was shredded, pressed together again, orming material for insoles. not the slightest item was permitted to go to waste. The superintendent said that from 5 to 10 thousand dollars was saved annually from what in more thoughtless times were thrown away.

From these suggestions I take a text for the lesson of today. How does waste occur in our education l system and how may this waste be prevented?

There are four very apparent sources of waste in the management of our schools.

First irregular attendance due largely to sickness of children. This may not infrequently be the direct result of the unhygienic condition of our school buildings. If children average only 70 per cent in a possible 100 per cent of attendance 30, per cent on each dollar is lost at this point.

Second. The discomforts of the school room, through imperfect heating and ventilation, makes it impossible to good work when the children are at school.

Third, through poor teaching and Fourth, through mis-directed effort. Through poor teaching there is waste in distributing effort over too great a field; there is waste due to applying effort at the wrong time; there is waste due to putting forth effort on useless matter; there is waste due to lack of discipline; there is waste due to the lack of co-operation of all the educational factors of the school, and finally there is at all times waste where there is no disposition to work. The school is a place for work. not a place to loaf, or dream or rest but a place of genuine thoughtful work.

There is a great difference between school keeping and school teaching and this difference is plainly distinguishable in the spirit of work shown in the daily life of the school.

There were so many pleasing and instructive features about this directors' convention that to enumerate them all would be a virtual impossibility. Among the many features was the most excellent music by Prof. P. H. Meyer's selected chorus of Bellefonte's musical talent. This is one feature of Centre county's capitol of which the municipality may well feel proud. As an illustration the duet sung (and recalled) by Mrs. J. C. Meyer and Mrs. Ambrose Schmidt does credit to any town, city or State.

The convention's evening session was opened by devotional exercises conducted by Rev. Schmidt, of the Bellefonte Reformed church. President Heinle very appropriately referred to the fact or query "What is There in All This for Any of Us Directors." The ex-Senator answered his own question in an eloquent way by stating it as his opinion that every school director and citizen who lent his influence and assistance in the direction of furthering the public school interests was doing the highest duty to his constituents, to the state, to his country and to his God. What are pecuniary emoluments, as compared with the satisfaction of realizing that we have been of at least some assistance in raising the intellectual standard of the community in which we live.

President Heinle's remarks were followed by State Supt, Schaeffer, at the evening session. The Doctor held up as samples, the whiskey bottle, the tobacco and the child. Of which does the parent think the most and for which would he fight the hardest and the longest. Somewhat discouraging as it may seem, he stated it as a fact that in Berks county, his native home, the people spent annually $50,000 for the education of their children, while they spent a million dollars for tobacco and beer or whiskey. While this fact is somewhat discouraging he says, there is a strong tendency to change this ratio of expenditure. The whiskey, beer and tobacco expenditure is becoming less from year to year and the amount for intellectuality is increasing, thus showing a change of temperament. Think of a teacher spending the time and money for a Normal school or any other preparatory course and start out at $35 per month. No wonder that the cream of the profession is leaving our ranks.

Everybody should be educated. It makes no difference in what avenue he or she may be employed. It is the educated laborer or mechanic who wields the balance of influential power. One thing that can be said of the United States is that it spends more money for the education of its rising generation than any other country on the face of the globe. By thus giving the child a fair chance it will be in time able to cope with the whiskey bottle and tobacco.

MORAL TRAINING NEEDED.

Superintendent Coughlin Argues That the Moral Influence of Public Schools is Ministry of Nation.

In his evening's address Supt. Coughlin brought out a whole barrel of facts to prove that the moral influence of the public schools of our land all tend to the elevation of the nation's intellectual standard. He cited facts where men of mature age of today are lamenting the fact that their education in youth was neglected. He said that we can hardly step onto the street today but what we meet someone who regrets that he didn't in his youth, enjoy the privilege of acquiring an education same as is granted to the youth of today. In his lecturing experience he came to Lewistown; Pa., where the superintendent of schools informed him that a man 72 years of age of that place made application for admittance to the primary school of that borough so that he might be able to learn to read. This shows the trend of intellectual advance.

It is the purpose of the State of Penn-

The cause of Lemuel Watsons broad smile is a big boy which came to his home Tuesday.

The fourth lecture of the course of lectures under the auspices of the Snow Shoe Epworth League was delivered Tuesday evening Jan 23, by Rev. Richard Gilbert, of Berwick, Pa. on "Brains" the lecture was a good one and should have been better attended the trouble with some of our people is they do not appreciate these good things, or if they do they fail to grasp the opportunities afforded them, when these lectures are within reach of all and at the moderate sum of 25c they should be more largely attended.

sylvania to eliminate illiteracy and in its place put intellectuality. The pupils must be taught the truth and nothing else. We can teach truth in the class of algebra and arithmetic fully as well as in any other branch of study, providing the same means are employed. A vast amount of the moral training of the school rests with the home of the pupils. The school is the home only in a miniature. One objection some few individuals have to the common schools is that it brings their children into association with those of a lower grade of temperament. This is a great mistake because you can't tear down or obliterate intelligence, but you can build up. The higher class is not lowered, but the lower class is elevated and thus puts on a more even level of humanity at large. It is the duty of those so situated to lead and not frown upon those apparently beneath them, This is the true moral spirit which every conscientious individual entertains.

CONVENTION NOTES.

Miscellaneous Matters Pertaining to the Session of This Year.

The attendance of directors was not as large as would naturally be expected. The roll call Thursday afternoon showed the following number from the districts enumerated making 73 in all: Bellefonte, 9; Benner, 5; Boggs, 4; College, 3; Curtin, 4, Ferguson, 1; Gregg, 1; Harris, 1; Halfmoon, 1; Howard borough, 4; Howard Twp., 5; Liberty, 5; Milesburg, 1; Millheim, 1; Patton, 2; Penn, 1. Philipsburg, 2; Potter, 1; Spring, 6; Union, 3; Unionville, 2; Walker, 5; Worth, 1.

Among the resolutions reported by the committee was a request to the Governor of the State to re-appoint Dr. N. C. Schaeffer as state superintendent of public schools. Since the directors believe in continuing the state superintendent in office for an indefinite period because of good service they would naturally apply the same spirit to the county superintendent.

Bellefonte Conclave I. O. H. Install Officers and Banquet.

At a regular meeting of Bellefonte Conclaves No. 111, I. O. H. held Friday evening January 20th, the officers for the year 1905 were duly installed by District Deputy, F. E. Naginey. The members turned out in large numbers and all took a deep interest in the proceedings. A very encouraging feature of the meeting was the presence of many of the older members and Past Archons, among them being Captain W. H. Fry of Pine Grove Mills, the oldest Heptasoph in Centre County with perhaps the possible exception of Capt. Austin Curtin of Roland. and a member of Standing Stone Conclave of Huntingdon, Pa. Bros J. S. McCargar, who was the first Archon of the Conclave obligated Bro. Naginey as Financier and delivered one of his characteristic addresses, which was hugely enjoyed by all present. Many of the other members also made short but very appropriate addresses. The annual banquet given by the Conclave took place at the Hotel Brandt which proved to be a most enjoyable affair. the menu was simply superb as all present do testify Mine Host, Mr. and Mrs. Noonen can always be relied upon to give you the very best in the market. Bro. Hammond Sechler was the very courteous Toast Master and caused the wit and humor to flow as freely and as unfailingly as Bellefonte water from her far famed spring.

So enjoyable was this affair that no move was made to adjourn until the old clock in the belfry of the Court House sounded the hour of midnight. Bellefonte Conclave now numbers one hundred of the best citizens of the City and surrounding country.

It is the purpose of the conclave to increase its membership at least fifty this year.

The officers installed are: Geo. M. Mallory, Archon; Herman Robb, Provost; A. M. Sloteman, Prelate; H. H. Harshbarger, Secy.; F. E Naginey, Financier; C. F. Cook, Treas.; Christ Beezer, Inspector; Wm. C. Taylor, Warder; H. D. Otto, Sentinel; H. A. Ishler, Geo. H. Hazel and Jacob H. Gross, Trustees.

The death roll of the conclave since its institution is as follows: Rev. J. A. Woodcock, Dr. S. E. Noll, J. Orvis Gillen, J. W. Alexander Esq., A. V. Hamilton, Moyer Lyon, Joseph Fox, A. Brockerhoff, Geo. L. Potter, John M. Dale Esq., Samuel Lewin, Col. W. F. Reeder Hon. Thomas F. Reily and represent an aggregate insurance of $30,000, all of which was promptly paid to the beneficiaries named in the certificates of membership.

Thus you will see that through our own seemingly little acts we may reach

"That purest heaven, be to other souls,
The cup of strength in some great agony,
Enkindle generous ardor, feed pure love,
Beget the smiles that have no cruelty—
Be the sweet presence of a good diffused,
And in diffusion ever more intense."

Is not this a grand incentive for telling an effective work in procuring new members and bringing some of fraternity's choicest gifts to others and indoing so, make this new year, upon which we have just entered, resplendent with good deeds, kind words and tender solicitude for others.

Thomas Coke of Milton Had a Narrow Escape From an Awful Death in a Machine Shop.

Milton, Jan 20.—Thomas Coke, aged about 46 years, was terribly injured at Shimer's shops Monday afternoon about 3 30 o'clock. He was operating the nut machine when his sleeve caught. The cloth was so strong that it did not tear, but jerked Mr. Coke into the machine. He fell with his head and shoulders against the machine. His nose was broken and literally torn from his face. He sustained a number of scalp wounds and a 12 inch gash on his shoulder, besides numerous cuts and bruises. He was taken to his home and Drs. Dougall and Miles dressed his injuries. He is resting as well as is possible, and will recover.

If the cod fish became extinct it would be a world-wide calamity, because the oil that comes from its liver surpasses all other fats in nourishing and life-giving properties. Thirty years ago the proprietors of Scott's Emulsion found a way of preparing cod liver oil so that everyone can take it and get the full value of the oil without the objectionable taste. Scott's Emulsion is the best thing in the world for weak, backward children, thin, delicate people, and all conditions of wasting and lost strength.

MOLOKANIES SEEKING FREEDOM.

A Philadelphian Helps New Russian Sect to Escape Persecution and Establish a California Colony.

Seventy-two Molokanies arrived in New York from Russia last Tuesday on the steamship Bluchuer and started for Los Angeles, where they intend to establish a colony. They are only the yanguard of thousands of members of their sect, who, fleeing from Russian persecutions, are about to seek a refuge in America.

Few persons in Philadelphia doubtless have heard of the Molokanies, although most are cognizant of the conditions which have caused their emigration,

There is one man in the city, however, who is well qualified to speak about the Molokanies, and he is Joseph Elkinton, Jr., whose philanthropy has led him to spend much time and money in aiding oppressed peoples.

Mr. Elkinton, who is a prominent member of the Society of Friends, was largely instrumental in bringing to this country from Russia the Doukhobours, who have formed successful colonies in Canada. He has travelled in Russia, has visited the Molokanies and is of the opinion that they would be valuable additions to any community, if given the advantages of education and freedom. He said to-day:

"A Molokany means in Russian a milk-drinker, and this designation illustrates the sobriety of the people. The reports that 200,000 of them are coming to this country are greatly exaggerated, and there are not more than 50,000 of them, at a liberal estimate.

"They live in Southern Russia, a little to the west of the Crimea, and are looked upon with distavor by the Czar's government because of their aversion to war. For this reason many of them were exiled. Some of them settled in Kars, a town near the boundary line of Persia. Here they thrived, in spite of the sterile soil, and increased in wealth and population, as I think they will do in this country.

"The Molokanies represent the best class of immigrants. They neither smoke nor drink and are clean and intelligent While the tenets of their faith are in many respects similar to those of the Friends, they are not, as some reports have it 'Russian Quakers' and have no connection with the Society of Friends."

When asked regarding the condition of the colonies of Doukhobors, in Canada, many of whom were brought across the Atlantic at his expense, Mr. Elkinton said:

"The education of the Doukhobors requires patience. The attempts to colonize them have been on the whole successful, but too much cannot be expected of people who have lived for centuries amid ignorance, superstition and cruelty.

"Two colonies have been formed northwest of Winnipeg, Manitoba, one about 300, the other 600 miles from that place. They are for the most part contented. Such dissatisfaction as exists is not with the conditions of the country or their ability to live comfortably.

"The only complaints I heard among them were in regard to the government of the colony. This is a commune, but it has a practical, if not a theoretical ruler. This man, it is said, exercises autocratic authority, and has introduced Russian features of government, which are the cause of much grumbling and may lead to trouble. The Molokanies are the superior of the Doukhobors in education, and I expect their colonies to be more successful."

The party that arrived last Tuesday is in charge of P. E Deamans, a Russian and a believer in their faith. Five years ago, when he was a captain in the Imperial Guard of Russian, he was converted. He refused to bear arms against his fellowmen, in accordance with the laws of his new religion, and as a punishment the Czar banished him from the country. He came to the United States and settled in California. He is a man of wealth, a writer and a linguist, and while in his native country was an active contributor to the Liberal papers.

No More Stomach Trouble.

All stomach trouble is removed by the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It gives the stomach perfect rest by digesting what you eat without the stomach's aid. The food builds up the body, the rest restores the stomach to health You don't have to diet yourself when taking Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. J. D. Erskine, of Allenville, Mich., says "I suffered Heartburn and Stomach trouble for some time. My sister-in-law has had the same trouble and was not able to eat for six weeks. She lived entirely on warm water. After taking two bottles of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure she was entirely cured. She now eats heartily and is in good health. I am glad to say Kodol gave me instant relief." Sold by Green's pharmacy.

The Entertainments of the Star Course.

Through serious omission, no comment was made on the superior excellence of the second entertainment, given by the Star Course, the Frank Robison's illustrated lecture on Russia and Japan. This omission is to be regretted, as our town in its past history has been noted for its high appreciation of the best things, and this lecture, was worthy of very much more than a passing notice, being the best of its kind ever given here. These entertainments are all delightful, and it would seem hardly necessary to urge a full attendance on them, yet, if we are to continue the privilege of first-class entertainments, it is indeed, most important, that our town should more fully manifest their willingness to support them by much larger audiences. All should feel a personal interest in anything connected with Petrikin Hall, and it should receive the strong endorsement of all when it is remembered that its erection, originated, in the laudible purpose of benefitting all in this community, the building is unique, in that it is the only public woman's building in our town. An appeal to aid in freeing this beautiful hall from debt, should arouse a most earnest and cordial response from all; on Friday evening, Jan. 27th, 1905, the third entertainment in the Star Course will be given in Petrikin Hall the "Chicago Lady Entertainers."

COMFORTING WORDS.

Many a Bellefonte Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed; to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. To tell how this great change can be brought about will prove comforting words to hundreds of Bellefonte readers.

James Hassie, farmer, living at Jersey Shore, Pa., says: "I seemed to be unable to find anything to give me relief from backache. I tried all of our home remedies and consulted physicians; besides to grow weaker and more painful. At length I saw Doan's Kidney Pills highly spoken of and recommended by Lock Haven people whom I knew, and I made up my mind to try them. I went to Lock Haven and Mr. Mason, the druggist, told me that I could not find any better medicine. I got a box and began using them, and inside of forty-eight hours I felt decided improvement. I was cured in a short time and have never had backache since. That is proof enough for me of the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Plenty more proof like this from Bellefonte people. Call at F. Potts Green's drug store and ask what his customers report.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure
Digests what you eat.
Green's Pharmacy.

When a woman gives up it is because she has gone to the utmost limit of strength and endurance. It is a marvel how women will stagger on under the daily household burdens when the whole body is racked with pain.

For the nervous, run-down condition which so many women experience, as a result of overstrain in household cares, there is no medicine can equal Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the weak stomach by curing diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It purifies the blood of poisons which cause rheumatism and other painful diseases. It nourishes the nerves, and builds up the body with sound, healthy flesh.

There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery" and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

Accept no substitute for the "Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for weakness, nervousness and debility.

"I want the whole world to know what Dr. Pierce's medicines have done for me," writes Mrs. Helen Hardgrove, of Bangs, Knox Co., O., "I had many of the ills of woman's life. My lungs and throat troubled me besides, and I had rheumatism. About a year ago I had to give up work I was so bad. I had heard so much about your medicine I thought I would try it. I took four bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' and by the time I had taken half of the first bottle I began to gain, and kept on getting better. And now I have no more of my old ailments and am entirely cured of rheumatism, I feel like a new woman."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—Prof. W. D. Blair, of Mifflinburg, sang a solo in the Presbyteria church Sunday morning.

—The concert given by the Mary Ann Johnson Concert company in the Presbyterian Chapel Friday evening was a great success.

—Jacob Hicks of Stormstown has sold his beautiful farm, to David Behrer. for five thousand dollars, and at private sale last week bought the Widow Thompson Farm for four thousand dollars.

—Rev. E. L. Eslinger of Stormstown circuit, is holding a very successful meeting at Gray's Church. The meeting has only been in progress about a week, and up to Thursday evening the 19th. there were eight seekers at the altar, the members feel that much good will be accomplished before the meeting comes to a close.

—Surprising it is how many musical shows spring up from all parts of the country, and it will be soon, as it was with society drama, melodrama, farce, comedy, etc., that the public will clamor for something else. But there are exceptions to all rules. "Miss Bob White," the most popular comic opera of the latter day. was a financial success before the present vogue of musical shows, and will live after the other have passed into oblivion. It is now in its fifth year and recently played Xmas week to the largest profit since its first tour. You can't find many doing the same—it was all right to call it "the evergreen" comic opera, after all.

—A cotton-picking machine has been invented by a planter in Georgia, in which a current of air is set up in a tube by means of a suitably arranged fan and blower, the same discharging into a receptacle, the suction thus produced serving to remove from the plants the open boils of cotton which are ready for picking, and to convey them through a conduit and then through the blower mecanism into the receptacle. This apparatus is mounted on wheels, and is designed to be driven down the rows of cotton-plants in the field. As the end of the suction tube passes over the open bolls the cotton is separated from the plant.

—The electrical treatment of sewage seems to have proven simple, inexpensive and effective. A solution of salt and water, or even ordinary sea-water, is decomposed in a special electrolyzer of large surface and using a large volume of current, and the so called oxchloride solution is added to the sewage in quantity varying with circumstances. Any kind of sewage liquid may be treated. The worst forms are readily made as free from bacteria in drinking water, and raw sewage receiving 18½ gallons of solution per 1,000 gallons showed a reduction of organism from 23,200,000 to 540 per cubic centimeter in five hours, baccilli allied to those of typhoid diminishing from over 1,000,000 to none.

—Students of the brain are hampered by the scarcity of specimens of famous brains. The French Societe Mutuelle d'Autopsie, founded in 1881, now has ten brains or more, including those or Gambetta, Bertillon and G. de Mortillet; the Cornell Brain Association, founded by Professor Wilder, in 1889, has bequeathed to it seventy brains, of which thirteen has been delivered and preserved; and the American Anthropometric Society, started in Philadelphia, has six brains of scholars. In Sweden, Retzius is making a comparison of the brains of an astronomer, a mathematician, a physician and a pedagogue.

—It is the proud boast of the largest firm of locomotive builders in the United States of America, a concern whose employees number at times as high as 15,000, that it has never had a strike. No discrimination is ever made in favor of or against union men. All hands know that the latchstring to the head of the establishment is always out, and that any one, of whatsoever station, can secure a respectful hearing of any grievances he may have It takes years of good faith before the workingmen can understand that principles such as these are traditions of a plant, and if such traditions are to be kept alive they must be instilled in a sufficient number of men to form the backbone of the later element. It is a difficult matter to obtain the confidence of the apprentices that they offer the most fertile field for the development of a good, loyal body of men. This establishment has always considered the welfare of its employees, and the fact that it has never had a strike is due to exact consideration, by all men in charge, to every grievance of every employee.

—Bargains in embroideries at Joseph's white sale. D-4t.

—Captain Amos Mullen of the Bellefonte Police force was stricken Wednesday morning with a stroke of paralysis.

—"Neglected colds make fat graveyards." Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup helps men and women to a happy, vigorous old age.

—Messrs. George Hazel and Curtis Wagner have purchased the Harper Brothers grocery and will conduct the same in the future.

—Mrs. William Jones, of East High street, had a slight stroke of paralysis Sunday evening at 5 o'clock. She is reported as improving.

—Tickets for Chicago Lady Entertainers on Friday evening at Petrikin Hall are on sale at Sheffer's. Gen'l ad. 50 cts. Reserved seats 15 cts. extra.

—James E Solt, the shoemaker, fell and dislocated his wrist and is unable to work for a few days. His other arm has been crippled for years so that he is in bad shape.

—Miss Sue Shipley, a nurse at the Bellefonte Hospital, left Tuesday morning for her home in Unionville; called there by the sudden death of her brother, B. Paul Shipley.

—Maurie Jackson is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Borough Auditor and Frank Williams has entered the field for the Republican nomination for Overseer of the Poor.

—The great revival in the United Evangelical church at Fairview, conducted by Rev. D. A. Artman, closed Monday evening with the result of 60 conversions. The meetings at Howard are still in progress.

—Mrs. Mary Patton, the widow of the late Hon. A. E. Patton, will donate a handsome pipe organ to the Methodist church of Patton in the near future and will also make a similar donation to the Curwensville M. E. church.

—The thirty-seventh annual state convention of the Y. M. C. A. will be held in Johnstown February 16 to 19. The Johnstown association is already making arrangements for the entertainment of the delegates and a good time is assured for all who attend.

—As the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln falls on Sunday this year, the annual celebration of "Lincoln Day" by the Pennsylvania State college, will be observed on Monday. February 13 at 10 a. m., in the auditorium. The orator of the day will be Hon. L. A. Watres, of Scranton.

—A rumor is in circulation to the effect that Joseph L. Montgomery was going to be a candidate for Council from the North Ward of Bellefonte. A reporter for the Republican interviewed Mr. Montgomery in regard to the matter and he positively denied that such was the case. He said he would not be a candidate for the office under any circumstances.

—The Mary Ann Johnson Concert Company appeared in the Presbyterian church at Milesburg on Tuesday evening and gave one of their delightful old fashioned concerts to a large and appreciative audience. The receipts were $24.00. Two receptions were given in honor of the Concert company at which they were hospitably entertained. It was a most enjoyable occasion and one that will be long remembered.

—Professor Weston M. Fulton, of the University of Tennessee, has invented a motor which is operated by changes in temperature. It consists of an expansible and collapsible vessel with thin corrugated steel, brass or copper, walls filled with a saturated vapor peculiarly sensitive to changes in temperature. The expansion or contraction of the vapor alters the shape and dimensions of the vessel, thus generating a small amount of power. The device, which is called a sylphon, is expected to be useful for purposes of temperature regulation, fire-alarm and extinguishing, clock-winding, etc.

—James A. Feidler, who is teaching one of the Milesburg schools and who attended the School Directors convention in session here last week had an unusual honor conferred upon him Thursday when that body elected him an honorary member of the Centre County School Directors Association Never before in Pennsylvania was this honor conferred upon a citizen. The report of the School Directors convention which our readers will find in the Republican this week is written by Mr. Feidler who in addition to his qualifications as a teacher is one of the brightest newspaper writers in the state today.

—A very pleasant informal reception took place Friday evening at the palatial home of Mrs. D. H. Hastings in honor of her mother Mrs. Rankin's 81st. birthday which was in the nature of a surprise. The Mary Ann Johnson Concert Company added much to the pleasure of the evening by rendering a few of their choice selections. Mrs. Rankin received a number of beautiful gifts which gave her much pleasure. She is one of our youngest girls in town in activity, she can put any 18 year old girl to the blush as well as being still able to trip the light fantastic as gracefully as she ever did. All left wishing her many many happy returns of the day and wishing that at her age we would be like her in every way.

News from the County.

D. A. Meyer has been appointed Democratic chairman for 1905, by county chairman, Capt. H, S. Taylor.

Mrs. Foreman, widow of John Foreman, will move from her farm near Potters Mills to Centre Hall.

The Old Fort and Aaronsburg turnpike case set for January term of court has been continued by the court until the April term.

T. M. Gramley recently bought the Shook Brothers interest in the Spring Mills creamery, and has now become sole owner of the plant.

He also worked in the Howard rolling mill for W. H. Long, and may be looked upon as having had sufficient experience to be a first-class miller.

John Brisbin, of Girard, Kansas, is east on a visit. He went west from near Tuscseyville in 1867, and was here but once, twenty-two years ago, in that time. He is engaged in farming.

Edward Royer, of Centre Hall, has leased the Old Fort hotel, and will succeed I. A. Shawver as landlord of that hostelry. Mr. Shawver will move to the Natioonal htel, Millheim.

Quite a lot of chemical wood is being hauled from the lumber tract on Nittany Mountain and shipped from Linden Hall. James Swabb has charge of the work and employs about twenty men. Besides four or five teams are kept busy hauling the wood to market.

The houses occupied by James Gunsallus and Mrs. Williams in Blanchard, which have been quarantined because of smallpox, have been thoroughly fumigated and the quarantine discontinued. There are no other cases in the township and the disease there is apparently stamped out,

Mr. P. E Hicks, of Benore, met with quite a painful accident while testing his new gun. The barrel of this one is short, while the other one was long. Forgetting the difference between the two guns, he allowed his hand to come too near the muzzle and shot a hole through his forefinger.

The horse used to draw the ice cutter on the pond of D. A. Boozer at Centre Hall, broke through the crystal formation and caused considerable excitement for a time. Mr. Boozer was seated on the cutter, and F. E. Arney was guiding the locomotive power, but both escaped without taking an ice water bath.

George W. Kline and father, John Kline, of Oak Hall, have leased the flouring mill of J. K. Moyer, at Spring Bank, between Millheim and Rebersburg, and will take posession in the spring. Mr. Kline learned the milling business at Potters Mills under Miller Bradford, and later operated the same mill for Samuel Frederick.

James L. Decker and Miss Verna L. Durst were married at the Reformed parsonage at Centre Hall, by Rev. Daniel Gress, Tuesday evening, Jan. 17. The groom is a son of M. M. Decker, and the bride is a daughter of Philip Durst, both living east of Centre Hall. The happy couple started for Pittsburg and other points in the western part of the State on a brief honeymoon trip

James B. Strohm entertained the pupils under his instruction in the Centre Hall Grammar Grade. at his home at Centre Hill, Thursday evening. The scholars looked forward to this event with great expectations, and none of them were disappointed. During the evening refreshments were served by Mrs. Strohm and her daughters—Misses Lola and Margaret.

David Riley Ruskins died at Potters Mills. Thursday, Jan. 12th, and was interred at Milroy the following Monday, Rev. J. M. Rearick officiating. His age was thirty-five years and he was a native of Dublin, Maryland. He is survived by his wife nee Mary McClenahan, of Potters Mills, and three children. The cause of his death was consumption from which he suffered more or less for five years.

Joseph Bowes, a resident of Beech Creek township, died suddenly Monday evening from neuralgia of the heart. He had been a sufferer from rheumatism for some years, but had reasonably good health this winter. He was in town a few days ago and his death was entirely unexpected He was aged about 70 years. He is survived by his wife and three sons, George, John and William, living in the township, and these daughters: Mrs. William Gill, of Julian; Mrs. William Darrah, North Bend; Mrs. Ross Stricker, Mill Hall; Mrs. John Hanley, Mrs, Henry Potter and Mrs. Elmer Young, of the township. Two sisters live in the west. Mrs. D DeLong of Avis, and Mrs. Funk, of Howard, are sisters of the deceased. Three brothers survive, Andrew, James and Thomas Bowes. The The funeral will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. Interment in the Clark graveyard.

DEATH OF DR. E. J. GRAY.

He Was a Native of Centre County and President of Dickinson Seminary.

The Rev. Edward James Gray, D. D., President of Williamsport Dickinson Seminary for the past thirty-one years and prominent in the ministry in the Methodist Episcopal church for nearly half a century, died at the Johns Hopkins' Hospital, at Baltimore about 8 o'clock Friday morning.

Dr. Gray was over seventy years of age, though he had always appeared much younger. He was born and reared in Centre county, and as a young man came to Williamsport Dickinson Seminary to complete his education. Here he met Eva Emery, then a student at the seminary, and in later years they returned to its halls as man and wife, and for more than thirty years have presided over its destinies.

GRADUATED FROM SEMINARY.

Dr. Gray was graduated from Dickinson Seminary with the class of 1858, and at once took up the work of the ministry. He entered the Central Pennsylvania M. E. Conference in 1859 his first charge being at Lock Haven. In 1860 he was located at Middletown, Md., 1861 in Huntingdon Avenue M. E. church, Baltimore; 1862-3, Lewisburg; 1864-5, Mulberry street church, Williamsport, in 1866-7 and a part of 1868 he was in ill-health and did not preach. He went to Lancaster in September, 1868, to become pastor of the First M. E. church; in 1869 he was in charge of the Fourth Avenue church; Allegheny City, 1870 1, Frostburg, Md., 1872-3; Grace church, Baltimore.

WAS ELECTED PRESIDENT.

On January 8, 1874, the Rev. William Lee Spottswood, D. D., the president of Dickinson Seminary, tendered his resignation to take effect at once. On February 13, 1874, the Rev. E. J. Gray, (he had not then received his title of Doctor of Divinity, which came in after years,) was elected by the Board of Directors to succeed Dr. Spottswood. He gave the matter careful and prayerful consideration, and then accepted the presidency of his Alma Mater, which was thus offered to him, and had he lived three weeks longer he wouldhave rounded out an active career of thirty-one years at its head.

He found the Seminary plodding along in the even tenor of its way, and quickly injected some of his own personal enthusiasm into the work. The number of courses of study were added to and the number of students constantly grew.

For some years past the ailment which culminated in his death had been undermining his vigorous constitution, but he hesitated to rest from his chosen work until warned by the physicians that immediate action was an absolute necessity. So, in the fall of 1903, he went, to Philadelphia, where a serious operation was performed.

It gave him temporary relief, but his active temperament brought him back to his labors at the earliest possible moment.

In the spring of 1904 a still more serious operation became necessary, and he submitted to it at the Johns Hopkins hospital at Baltimore. Although at death's door, and not expected to survive, he gathered strength and was able to return to Williamsport for commencement. Again his active mind refused to recognize the physical weakness, and he resumed considerable of his work.

THE END APPROACHES.

Though known to be far from a well man, it was a great surprise to the community when it learned that on December 23 he had returned to Johns Hopkins hospital for a third operation of a most serious character. A few days ago a fourth operation was necessary, and the full gravity of the case was recognized by all. His son was sent for and remained at his bedside until an apparent gathering of strength caused immediate danger to seem past, when he returned home On Thursday night the son was again summoned by telegraph, but Dr. Gray was unconscious when he arrived, and he sank steadily until the summons came and he passed into that sleep from which there is no awakening. He had heard the Master's voice saying' "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

Dr. Gray leaves a widow and two sons, William E. and Edward J.; a brother J. G. Gray, residing at Stormstown, and a sister, Mrs. Sarah B. Wilson, of Williamsport.

The remains were brought to Williamsport on Buffalo Express Friday afternoon. They were met at the station by the members of the faculty and the young men of Dickinson Seminary. There was no procession of the students, their presence being only a matter of respect for the dead president.

THE FUNERAL.

The funeral took place on Monday afternoon. The services being held in the Mulberry Street Methodist church, of which Dr. Gray was a member, and was preceded by brief services in the Seminary chapel for the students only.

JOSEPH KATZ & CO.

Bellefonte Business Firm Buys Clothing Store at Lewistown.

This week's Lewistown Free Press contains the following:

Joseph Katz & Company of Bellefonte have purchased of Harris Smith the clothing stand on the corner of Market and Brown streets, which has been rented by the gentlemen for a number of years. Mr. Smith will move to the building recently occupied by the Harvey Mann Pharmacy.

Katz & Co., have conducted a large and successful business in Bellefonte for several years. They are well and favorably known to a large percentage of shoppers throughout Centre County. This fact, together with their reputation as honest, conscientious and progressive merchants commends them to our citizens.

We extend our brightest wishes for the success of Katz & Company.

Seemed Like Headquarters.

Watching the drift of events, when the school directors of the county convened in Bellefonte, Thursday, the Hotel Haag, on Bishop street, must be headquarters for a large number of Centre county's intelligent people. But this is quite natural when all the circumstances are considered. If the reader can find a better conducted hostelry for the same price the writer would be glad to learn of it. Mr. Fred Mosebarger the proprietor never misses an opportunity in his efforts to please and accommodate each and every one of his guests.

—Charles E. Dorworth is ill with typhoid fever at his home in Philadelphia, It is said the crisis was passed on Monday and that he will recover.
